All of us working in schools know that we are dealing with the most important piece of a parent's life - their children! Emotions can run high when things aren't going well.

Despite the emotions we feel about information, events, procedures etc., it is important for parents to call the school when they are calm. Our secretaries deal with hundreds of phone calls each day and all of us appreciate the work they do for the Queen Mary School Community.

If you feel that you will be yelling or screaming when you call the school, please give yourself a few hours to calm down before picking up the phone. This small step will help preserve the positive relationships everyone values in our school.
