What is measles and should I be vaccinated?

Information is current as of March 21, 2024 from the Ontario College of Family Physicians*

Measles is a serious infection that is highly contagious. It can be spread through coughing, sneezing, talking, or even just breathing. It can also be transmitted by touching your eyes, nose, or mouth after touching an infected surface.

Who should be vaccinated:

- Children should receive two doses, given at age 1 and 4-6 years of age.
- Adults who have not been vaccinated or do not have a history of measles infection should receive one dose of a measles-containing vaccine.
- If you don't know whether you're vaccinated or have had measles, you are eligible for the vaccine.

Who should not be vaccinated:

- People who are pregnant
- Infants under 6 months
- People with weakened immune systems.
