OVER ➔

An education in music enriches students' lives by providing: - joy and pleasure -
- a transforming human experience - a unique way of knowing - access to our musical cultural heritage - a means for self-realisation and self-fulfillment -

... preparation for the 21st century workplace

"Creative and cultural development is a basic function of education, not a separate subject. They are completely compatible with high standards of literacy and they are equally, not less, important."

Sir Ken Robinson

World renowned expert on innovation and creativity

"Participating in the arts helps people develop their creativity. Creativity involves imagination and the ability to visualize. 'Seeing' situations as they might be in the future is a valuable tool for solving problems and changing situations."

Voluntary Arts Network, 2005

"There is a growing body of research that suggests that when arts are developed and included as part of the core curricula, students have more and better chances of achieving their greatest potential"

Dr. Len Henriksson

University of British Columbia Faculty of Commerce and Business Administration, 1998

"The nation's top business executives agree that arts education programs can help repair weaknesses in American education and better prepare workers for the 21st Century."

The Changing Workplace is Changing Our View of Education, BusinessWeek, October 1996

... quality of a young person's life

"Music education demonstrably improves academic achievement, behaviour and attitude. Through music, kids learn how to have constructive relationships with other people, how focus counts, how application produces results, how to dream and most of all, how to feel true joy."

Bob Ezrin, legendary producer

2004 Canadian Music Hall of Fame inductee

"Through music, children tap into their natural creativity, express themselves in ways that were otherwise impossible, and find tremendous satisfaction in doing so."

Pinchas Zukerman, Music Director,
National Arts Centre Orchestra

"With music, I feel complete. It reminds me that humans possess genius and can use it to create beauty. Music classes in our schools can unlock the doors to creativity and self expression for Canada's young people and help them expand their horizons."

Dr. Marc Garneau, former head of the Canadian Space Agency and the first Canadian astronaut in space, 2006

Coalition for Music Education in Canada www.musicmakesus.ca

"Music enhances the process of learning. The systems they nourish, which include our integrated sensory, attention, cognitive, emotional and motor capacities, are shown to be the driving forces behind all other learning."

- Konrad, R.R., Empathy, Arts and Social Studies, 2000

"Ongoing research at the University of California-Irvine and the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh demonstrate that learning and playing music builds or modifies neural pathways related to spatial reasoning tasks, which are crucial for higher brain functions like complex maths, chess and science." -Dr. Gordon Shaw (University of California-Irvine) and Dr. Fran Rauscher (University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh), with others. Nature 365:611 and Neuroscience Letters 185:44-47
