Terry Fox Run Thurs. Sept. 27th

Here is an interesting story about Terry Fox. One day when he was training before he began his Marathon of Hope, he had run only a half mile when the bottom half of his artificial leg snapped in two pieces, and Terry crashed to the pavement. He picked up the two parts of the prosthetic leg, tucked them under his arm and then was lucky enough to find a ride home. After that, he clamped the two parts together and ran another five miles. Nothing got in Terry's way.
